Note 2 – Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Allowance for Doubtful Accounts

Bad debts are provided by using the allowance method based upon historical experience and management's evaluation of outstanding accounts receivable at the balance sheet date for receivables that may not be fully collectible. Management's evaluation also includes potential non-payment due to product claims by customers. The Company's receivables are mainly receivables from trade receivables. Management has determined not to provide for allowance and believes the receivables are fully collected and no allowance for doubtful accounts is need to be provided as of March 31, 2013.

Inventories

Inventories consist of raw material consumables, such as coating powder and paint used in the operations and are valued at the lower of cost or market using the first in first out cost method.

Property, Plant and Equipment

Property, Plant and Equipment are stated at cost. Depreciation is calculated over the estimated useful lives of the assets using the straight-line method. The Company uses straight-line depreciation method for machinery and equipment in manufacturing and processing operations and for certain other manufacturing equipment. Expenditures for renewals and improvements are capitalized; repairs and maintenance are charged to expense as incurred.

The Company reviews property and equipment for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate the carrying value of an asset may not be fully recoverable. Based on periodic assessments of the realizability of its long-term assets and the analysis of undiscounted future cash flows for its long-term assets, no impairment of long-term assets need to be recognized by the company.

Federal Income Taxes

The Company has elected to be taxed as a corporation under the Federal tax laws. The company records Income taxes pursuant to the liability method. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are recorded based upon differences between the financial statement and tax bases of assets and liabilities and the available tax carry forwards. A deferred tax valuation allowance is recorded to state deferred tax assets at the estimated net realizable value.

The Company considers the fair value of all financial instruments to be not materially different from their carrying values, at March 31, 2013 based on management's estimate of the Company's ability to borrow funds under the terms and conditions similar to those applicable to the Company's existing debt.

Advertising Costs

Advertising costs are expensed when incurred.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements, in conformity with the Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP) used in the United States of America, requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affects the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reported period. Significant estimates include estimated future life in determining current depreciation rates under the depreciation method, estimated amounts for uncollectible accounts receivables and the estimated present value of the Company's note payable to seller. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Financial instruments which potentially subject the Company to a concentration of credit risk consist principally of cash and accounts receivable. The Company maintains cash balances at financial institutions which may at times be in excess of federally insured levels. The Company has not incurred losses related to these balances to date.
